Welcome to October Craft Month 2024

Farnham's October Craft Month is an opportunity for everyone to engage with a vast selection of excellent craft events and experiences. Farnham is known for its many talented craft makers and artists and is the first region in England to be honoured with the title of World Craft Town.

Our high reputation for craft has made Farnham an attractive destination. Throughout the month, Farnham is hosting over 80 activities to enjoy. You can visit exhibitions, take part in workshops, masterclasses and pop-up events, visit open studios and much more.

October is the highlight of the year where you can come and meet our vibrant community of makers and skilled artisans and immerse yourself in all the activities taking place in our local area. Learn how craft plays a special role in our community and experience for yourself the positive effect craft can have on boosting your mental wellbeing.

The prestigious Festival of Crafts brings together over 85 talented makers all under one roof. This festival champions great design and the process of using both traditional and modern craft techniques and skills. Buy directly from the maker.

To launch Farnham Craft Month The Old Dairy at Pierrepont Farm in Frensham is hosting an arts and crafts open day, starting at 12 noon on October 5th. This hub of artisan businesses will open their doors to the community and are joined by musicians, visiting artists and a variety of food and drink stalls. If you haven't visited before, this is a great opportunity to learn more and see the crafts people in action. And if you can walk or cycle to this rural location, so much the better!

Craft isn't only celebrated during Craft Month. Our rich crafting culture can be experienced all year round at the Museum of Farnham, Crafts Study centre, Farnham Maltings, New Ashgate Gallery, Surrey Artists Open Studios and the University for the Creative Arts – the champions of the future of Craft.

And finally, the month-long celebration will end with Farnham's first Lantern Festival. We have welcomed all parts of our community, young and old, to express their creativity by getting involved in making a lantern. This will culminate in an event on the last day of October Craft Month, where our community will walk with lighted lanterns to St Andrew's Church, where the lanterns will be displayed as a large-scale communal craft endeavour. We are delighted to welcome Frensham Heights School as this year's sponsor of October Craft Month, and encourage you to book onto one of the craft activities in their magnificent arts facility.

We hope to inspire you to feel as passionate about craft as we do!

11 Plus Craft

Creating a space in Farnham for crafts, specifically textiles and design

 @farnham_crafts_quarter

11 Plus Craft is a project delivered by Farnham Crafts Quarter CIC which teaches craft textiles to 11–16 year-olds at the Museum of Farnham. The project connects Farnham's heritage as a Cloth Town since the 1500s when the dye plant woad was the central crop.

Made possible by a grant from the National Lottery Heritage Fund, participants explored natural colour in dye, print and weave. Inspired by talks from Greta Bertram of the Crafts Study Centre, they handled print blocks, fabric and woven pieces by craft textile luminaries from the collection, such as Phyllis Barron and Dorothy Larcher, Enid Marx and Ethel Mairet.

During after school sessions from March to July at the Museum of Farnham participants learned craft textile skills. Guided by Toby Poolman and Helen Locke, they designed and printed lino and wood blocks to make repeat patterns printed with natural pastes, and used wood working skills to make looms. Samantha Jones and Ginny Farquhar showed the participants how to dye yarn and fabric using colours derived from plants and the students were shown how to weave experimental pieces.

The grant included funding to plant a dye garden and install information boards about the plants and their heritage, so the garden will provide natural colour for years to come. This project is the first step towards making use of larger looms kindly gifted to Farnham Crafts Quarter CIC by UCA.

Farnham Crafts Quarter CIC is an organisation that works with all ages to learn craft textile skills. 11 Plus Craft participants have gained a deeper insight into the textile history of the town, as well as teaching them valuable skills in sustainable making and design.

The process and work will be shared in an exhibition at the Museum of Farnham which runs from October 2nd – February 22nd 2025.

Farnham as a World Craft Town offers many opportunities for creatives

Creatives – makers, craftspeople, artists, designers, educators, gallerists and others – are well-served by events and opportunities in the Farnham and surrounding area.

In September 2023, Farnham Maltings, with a grant from the UK Shared Prosperity Fund through Waverley Borough Council, launched its first-ever Creative Business Programme. Thirty small, creative businesses (including ceramicists, jewellery makers, textile artists, a graphic designer, an illustrator, a furniture restorer and more) who are all looking to grow their business were selected for the 18-month programme of specialist talks, workshops, mentoring and business support, with the added benefit of a dedicated workspace at Farnham Maltings.

As well as delivering a business incubation programme to the selected group, the Creative Business Programme makes some of its talks open to the wider public and recent well-attended sessions have included expert speakers on topics such as the value of an email list and newsletter; optimising your website; and product photography skills. Keep an eye out for future talks that may help with your creative business skills.

Set up by friends and fellow creatives in 2019, the Farnham Creatives' Network is a growing social group that provides local creatives of all kinds with an opportunity to meet and get to know each other a little better.

Relaxed and informal gatherings are held every 2 months or so, usually hosted by Farnham Maltings in the Riverside Café, where creatives can chat over a drink and share ideas and experiences in a friendly and collaborative environment.

All creatives are welcome. Free admission and free evening parking. For dates and other details see Instagram and Facebook **@farnhamcreativesnetwork**

Farnham's World Craft City Neighbours

Farnham is proud to be one of six regions to hold the World Craft City status, awarded by the World Crafts Council to areas where there are excellent social, cultural, and economic contributions from craft communities.

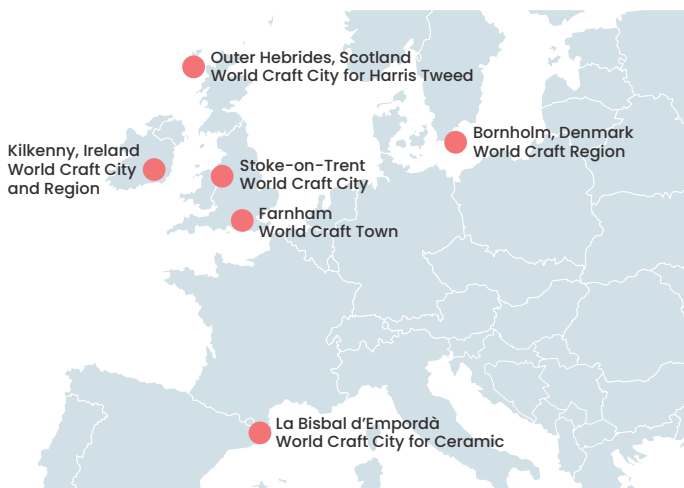

Farnham share this accolade with Maker's Island Bornholm, Denmark; Harris Tweed, Outer Hebrides, Scotland; Made in Kilkenny, Ireland; La Bisbal d'Empordà, Spain. We are thrilled that Stoke-On-Trent is the second English region to be awarded World Craft City status. Each region has a craft heritage that dates back hundreds of years and has successfully established itself as a centre of craft excellence. World Craft Cities are suitably placed to continue thriving for years to come, demonstrating the relevance of craft in contemporary life.

The aim of the World Craft City status is to emphasise craft expertise; encourage the potential for government support; promote tourism; and encourage knowledge exchange among other regions, creating opportunities for craftsmanship, creativity and community to continue to thrive.

Why not visit one of our wonderful WCC neighbours and explore the wealth of talented makers and artists.

Louise Anderson

Textiles

 @louiserenaeanderson.artist

 uca.ac.uk/events/galleries/seen-the-unseen-textiles

Led by UCA Surrey Galleries and generously funded by South Street Trust, 'See The Unseen: Textiles' involves a series of workshops that aim to raise awareness of invisible disabilities within the Farnham community through creative textiles expression. The workshops are designed and delivered by Louise Renae Anderson, a textile artist and educator known for her exceptional hand-woven textiles.

Through textiles workshops, the project engages students and community members to create stenciled printed textile pieces, decorated with hand stitching, which will then be sewn into a large quilt, representing the collective creativity of the community. This quilt will be exhibited at multiple venues, celebrating artistic contributions, and raising awareness of invisible disabilities.

Louise will deliver multiple two hour workshops during October Farnham craft month at venues across the Farnham Community, including local schools, Oxfam Bookshop, Farnham Maltings, Craft Study Centre, UCA, Creative Response arts for wellbeing and more. Together we aim to support the community through education about invisible disabilities, develop textile skills, and foster creativity, togetherness and empathy.

Open to all skill levels, whether you would like to learn some simple stencil print or hand stitch techniques and enjoy others' company, or perhaps you are more advanced and would just like to come together with us and add your creativity to our community textile art piece. All are welcome, join us to bring visibility to the unseen and celebrate community resilience through textile art.

Cost: The event is FREE open to all students, families, and community members.

Lantern Festival

Light up the night

Farnham's first Lantern Festival will take place on Thursday October 31st 2024. The inspiration for the Festival is the significant Celtic celebration which marks the end of the harvest season and the beginning of winter, taking stock of the past and looking forward to the future.

The Lantern Festival will welcome all parts of the community, young and old, to express their creativity, get involved in making a lantern, and light up a dark October evening.

It will culminate in an outdoor gathering of groups and individuals with their lanterns at 6.00pm on Gostrey Meadow on October 31st, creating a gentle festival atmosphere on last day of October Craft Month.

Participants will then walk with their lighted lanterns to St Andrew's Church, where the lanterns will be displayed as a large-scale communal craft endeavour.

Over the summer, community groups, faith groups, schools and informal groups of friends have been creating spectacular willow and paper lanterns, and there is still time to make yours! Look out for lantern kits that will be available throughout September and October.

Community groups can request free kits from hello@farnhamcrafttown.com or individuals can purchase a kit for just £3.50 from Farnham Town Council and local retailers. Check the dedicated website page for more information.

Lucy Dorothy Nichols

Paper

 @LucyDorothyArt

What are you working on at the moment and where do you find ideas for your work?

I've just finished a piece called Fitzroy's Weather Factory. I've been working full time on it for the past two months, and it's probably my biggest paper sculpture to date. So I'm now ready to start dreaming about what to make next.

What motivates you to make work, who do you believe has influenced your career and inspired you to start?

I'm sure as with a lot of creatives, it's not really a question of motivation. Thinking and working creatively is just what I do, I can't imagine not making. And in terms of who has influenced my career, it's more of a what than a who. Instagram has been massively influential in enabling me to work as an artist. I love following lots of wonderful artists on it, such as @lottiefarmer7, @clover_robin, @thestealthyrabbit, @janine_burrows_studio and of course @sineadfoxstudio, who's an incredibly talented and super inspiring local artist.

If you could name one, what is your favourite piece of work you have created, and why?

It would have to be the pinball machine that I made during my art foundation at UCA Farnham. Made entirely from paper, it was a full-size arcade game that actually worked. The ball bearing, or a Gobstopper in this case, travelled round the game, illustrating the path food takes around the human body once it's been swallowed. I made it to illustrate the concept that learning can be achieved through play.

What is your proudest achievement / or award you have received?

Winning the Surrey Artist of the Year 2023 award was wonderful of course. But I'd say I was more surprised and flattered about that, than proud. I am proud though, to have started the Farnham Creatives' Network with fellow artist Denise Jaques and art consultant/gallerist Nina Jex.

What is the most indispensable item or tool in your studio?

Over the years I've built up quite a collection of old cardboard and paper off cuts. And when I begin work on a new sculpture, I start by rummaging through them all, to find what I need. I prefer using old papers that have already had another life, to going out and buying something new. So, I'm always squirreling away odd bits of cardboard or paper that have something appealing about them.

Where is your favourite place to see art / craft?

I absolutely love visiting Meadow in Stockbridge. The colourful and inspiring interior of their Georgian townhouse is the perfect home for their beautifully curated art exhibitions. Closer to home, I always make a beeline for the pop-up exhibitions at Magpie in Farnham when they're on, because I love the way Nina curates her exhibitions.

What advice would you give to someone just starting out?

Don't overthink it. Experiment. Seek advice when you need it. Be inspired by others, but don't copy. Forge your own path.

Where can we try a workshop, in your craft, locally?

As part of Surrey Artist of the Year, I'm running a workshop for children during October half term at the New Ashgate Gallery in Farnham. It's a free drop in event, where we'll be using old books and found papers to make lots of beautiful paper stars.

Where can we see and buy your work?

My solo show at the New Ashgate Gallery in Farnham runs from 14th September until 9th November.

Farnham Craft Town's first Artist in Residence: Fiona Byrne

As part of their commitment to supporting emerging artists, the Farnham South Street Trust this year funded our first Artist in Residence, Fiona Byrne, a glass artist from Ireland. The aim is to host artists from a variety of craft disciplines over the next five years, with each one creating a piece of art inspired by Farnham, which will eventually form a special craft collection, owned by Farnham and representative of Farnham Craft Town.

UCA is one of the few Universities in the country now with the facilities to work with hot glass, and Fiona was very excited to be able to work alongside the skilled staff and students during her stay.

After introducing her to the many local makers who wanted to meet her, she settled into her studio at Farnham Maltings and got to work.

Her approach was collaborative, working with local makers and local materials to create images and impressions in clay that she then fired, and used as moulds to blow glass into. She also gave a number of talks, to members of the general public, small creative businesses and the student body at UCA to share her expertise and experience as an artist.

This culminated in an Open Studio on her last day with us, where visitors could see the whole process she had been through and ask her questions about the work. She was also able to display some of her existing work at the New Ashgate Gallery.

Her final piece includes textures made by local craftspeople at the community workshop, embellished with gold leaf to highlight the edges and inner surfaces of the pieces. It has been displayed at the Crafts Study Centre over the summer, and you can see it again at the magnificent glass exhibition at UCA during October.

"I can see why Farnham has received the designation of a World Craft Town, the energy and creativity here is really special and should be celebrated."

After a very successful start to the programme of Residencies, Farnham is now looking for its next visitor. See the Farnham Craft Town website to find out more.

Kieran McQuillan Glass

 @kieranmcquillan.jr

What are you working on at the moment and where do you find ideas for your work?

I am currently establishing myself within the glass blowing community by working in hotshops and developing my skills and experience as a maker. I am furthering my ideas from my grad show series Sturnus, that is inspired by extensive work within the animal industry. I have turned my focus back to native birds, that in my early career I had spent time rehabilitating in a sanctuary.

What motivates you to make work, who do you believe has influenced your career and inspired you to start?

My motivation for making comes from pushing myself to create bigger more technical work. I come from a family of joiners so I feel that it has been instilled in me to develop a skill and trade and to work hard to perfect it. I am incredibly grateful for my teachers at UCA Laura Quinn and Joshua Kerley who have not only taught me practical skills but how to communicate through my work as an artist.

If you could name one, what is your favourite piece of work you have created, and why?

My most recent work is always my favourite as it motivates me to make the next piece even better.

What is your proudest achievement/ or award you have received?

My proudest achievement has been being commended in the Glass Sellers' and Contemporary Glass Society's Graduate Glass Prize and my work will be featured in their New Graduate Review Magazine. I am so happy to be sharing my work with the glass community.

What is the most indispensable item or tool in your studio?

My most important tool in my kit would be my blow hose as I need it to my work independently. Traditionally Glass blowers would have an assistant to blow for them while they are making but I have not always been able to find someone to assist me within the studio so I have adapted to working by myself so that I can make as much as possible.

Where is your favourite place to see art / craft?

The New Ashgate as they are very active and show a range of different crafts and and art.

What advice would you give to someone just starting out?

Work as hard as possible and to learn and watch everyone around you. You need to show a high level of respect to your studio as it is a privilege to learn such a beautiful skill, and the glass will teach you a lot about yourself through its challenges.

Where can we try a workshop, in your craft, locally?

If you wanted to try glassblowing I have just started working as a teaching assistant in Molten 1090 in Hackney. We do a range of classes that allow you to make your very own glass baubles, paperweights and tumblers to get a taste of glassblowing.

Where can we see and buy your work?

My work is currently for sale at Farnham Maltings and my grad show work will be featured in the Shaping Glass Shaping Futures exhibition at UCA in the James Hockey gallery during craft month in October.

Being part of a community of makers in Farnham is...

...inspiring, there is such a healthy craft heritage in the town. It is wonderful to see all of these different crafts being supported by the community and kept alive.

Jamie Dobson Wood

Instagram @peopledotstudio

Globe icon people.studio

What are you working on at the moment and where do you find ideas for your work?

Always several things at once... this week I'm making things from wood for craft festivals including Farnham Festival of Crafts; I'm preparing for the arrival of new students at UCA (I teach graphic design); I'm working on a design project for a new festival of sound and image; and I'm doing field research related to a PhD project.

What motivates you to make work, who do you believe has influenced your career and inspired you to start?

Motivation to work is complicated and has shifted over time. It informed my teenage identity; 35 years later it's habit – it's my work and pleasure.

I'm influenced by many things. The trajectory of my creative practice starts in 1989 with me working in a fish and chip shop in Great Yarmouth. It was the year of the Tiananmen Square protest and the fall of the Berlin Wall. Much more of an influence on my world at that time was my mum's encouragement to do what I enjoyed, and the thrill of the Pixies Doolittle album (the cover was designed by Vaughan Oliver, I was lucky to work with him many years later).

If you could name one, what is your favourite piece of work you have created, and why?

I don't have a favourite piece, I'm not at all sentimental. By the time I finish a project I'm ready to move on. However, specific to my craft practice there's an idea that reoccurs – embedding the story behind a piece of reclaimed material into a new object. For example, a chopping board made using oak shop fittings from my wife's family butchers that was demolished to make way for the Hammersmith flyover (it was her grandparent's shop, I'm told they sold sausages to Peter Sellers).

What is your proudest achievement?

I'm proudest and derive the most personal satisfaction through micro-achievements – the cycle of thinking, making, testing, learning and revising that leads to a successful outcome.

What is the most indispensable item or tool in your studio?

My Hi-Fi, without a doubt.

Where is your favourite place to see art / craft?

I'm interested and take inspiration from lots of things – a dog show at a local fete, a gathering of hot-rod cars in a supermarket carpark, a cinema release from a favourite director, or an international design biennale.

What advice would you give to someone just starting out?

I'd give encouragement rather than advice.

Where can we try a workshop, in your craft, locally?

There's a low barrier to entry if you're interested in making things from wood. Start off with prepared timber and hand-tools and progress from there.

There are lots of resources online. There are in-person woodworking courses including locally at West Dean and Chichester College.

Where can we see and buy your work?

I have a website: www.people.studio. I also take part in the Farnham Festival of Crafts at the Maltings and the Great Northern Contemporary Craft Fair in Manchester.

Being part of a community of makers in Farnham is...

Good. There are lots of contemporary makers in Farnham – overlapping communities of craftspeople, artists, film makers, animators and designers. UCA, attracts interesting people.

West Street Potters benefited from a rich seam of creativity that arrived with Siddig El Nigoumi on his return from Sudan in the 1960's. He is remembered with affection for his rigorous teaching and contribution to the glazing palette – Nigoumi Hard – words that mystify current members. Hopefully this exhibition will reignite interest in Nigoumi's influence and interest visitors in a significant part of WSP history.

The Hidden Histories of Women University for the Creative Arts

Link Gallery, UCA Epsom, Ashley Road Epsom, Surrey, KT18 5BE

01 Oct – 03 Nov

10am – 5pm

FREE

Women's stories comprise just 0.5% of recorded history. From medieval queens to our grandmothers, their contributions have often been overlooked. Historically seen as homemakers and mothers, women provided essential support. Grandmothers, in particular, passed down life skills and experiences, fostering security and belonging. Using textiles, a medium tied to domestic and cultural values, Alison Baxter explores these connections in her work.

Farnham World Craft Town supporters and makers

Farnham, as a World Craft Town, is guided by a steering group made up of the University for the Creative Arts, The Crafts Study Centre, the New Ashgate Gallery, Farnham Maltings and Farnham Town Council. Financial support comes from the Farnham South Street Trust, Farnham Town Council and Farnham Maltings and time is generously given by all the makers, craft venues and organisations who are part of Farnham Craft Town.

Our makers come together through the Farnham Creatives Network, a growing social group that provides local artists, makers, designers, educators, gallerists and creatives of all kinds with an opportunity to meet and get to know each other a little better.

Relaxed and informal gatherings are held every other month, hosted by Farnham Maltings or in other local art venues, where creatives can chat over a drink and share ideas and experiences in a friendly and collaborative environment. They are free to attend and open to all.
